

PITSTOP BETTING (“PSB”) - MULTIPLAY POLICY

With PSB you have the option to play combination (“multiplay”).

Multiplay refers to the practice of placing multiple plays on a series of selections in order to reduce risk and maximise potential gain.

Here is an example of multiplay:

Lewis Hamilton is in pole position at the Monaco Grand Prix 2018 and you think because he is in great form he will win the race and you think that, because of current form, Sebastian Vettel will place second. You might get 6-1 odds that Hamilton will win the race and you might get 5-1 odds on Vettel placing second. So, what you could do, is place a play of £10 on Hamilton winning the race and if you won, you would get back your £60 and you could place a play of £10 on Vettel to finish second and win £50. But, if you think both those outcomes are going to happen and you are confident in that, you can combine them into one play giving you a far bigger return.

The return is greater if you combine your plays because the multiplay outcome is harder to predict than if you simply split your money into two separate plays.

WARNING though: it also means that if Hamilton wins and Vettel is not second you have lost all your placed plays, even if one or more are correct.

The concept behind multiplay is to increase your returns. There is a minimum of 5 plays to cumulate for the multiplay to be registered and valid.

PSB’s policy is that there are no returns on plays that result in the play going bust.

Cash out upon a successful play can be done via the My Account and My Wallet section of the website and App as per the PSB Withdrawal Policy.

DISCLAIMER: multiplay is not available yet so cannot be played until it has been activated.
